MOOSE RUN PRODUCTIONS PRESENTS “TO REPAY A DEBT” — A HISTORICAL NOVEL

Clinton Township, Mich., — Moose Run Productions, a publisher of books that offer readers a wholesome and enjoyable respite, proudly presents “To Repay A Debt” — a 341-page historical and inspirational novel released in October 2005. Written by Michigan-based author Nancy Feldbush, “To Repay A Debt” was a finalist in both the historical and religious fiction categories of “ForeWord” Magazine’s Book of the Year Awards. The novel, as a trade paperback, is available through any bookseller for a retail price of $12.95.

The first in a series, “To Repay A Debt” takes place during the upswing of America’s Victorian-era furniture industry and follows three dauntless souls as they labor to carve out a life for themselves in the late 19th-century Midwest. And yet, within this suspenseful tale of the past, the characters face many of the same questions and problems that still arise today.

Both men and women of all ages have enjoyed “To Repay A Debt.” In addition, the historically correct setting and circumstances, the wholesome and uplifting message, and the can’t-put-the-book-down story line make this novel stand out from the crowd.

The author has had several book signings at both independent and chain bookstores. Ms. Feldbush has also lectured at colleges, libraries, churches and organizations and is available for workshops and seminars.

Moose Run Productions acquired this title (previously released as “Walking in the Midst”) after a successful yet very limited release in the author’s hometown. Working with the author, the publisher expanded, revised, retitled and reissued the novel as a second edition and the first book in a series.

Moose Run Productions publishes books of various genres that are decent, uplifting, and steeped in Christian values. The small but growing company, which is located in Clinton Township, Mich., values the written word and promises that its books are lovingly written, impeccably edited, and professionally produced.
