Read It First: Historical Fiction That Inspires and Uplifts

Mount Clemens, MI. July 27, 2006-When a desperate call for help from an old friend embroils Peter Leighton and his stepbrother, Daven Ashby, in the corruption and treachery that's overtaken the Rheinhardt Furniture Factory, the brothers find themselves facing a perilous mission. Can they survive the wicked twists that threaten to tear them--and the factory's future--apart? Perhaps--provided the love, strength and compassion of Anna Spreyer reaches them first.

In her first novel, To Repay a Debt, author Nancy Feldbush delves into the gas-lit streets, horse-drawn carriages and telegraphed messages of 1880's-era Michigan to tell a timeless story of faith and inspiration certain to intrigue and inspire readers.

Previously released as Walking in the Midst, To Repay a Debt was a finalist for ForeWord Magazine's Book of the Year awards in Historical Fiction and Religious Fiction.

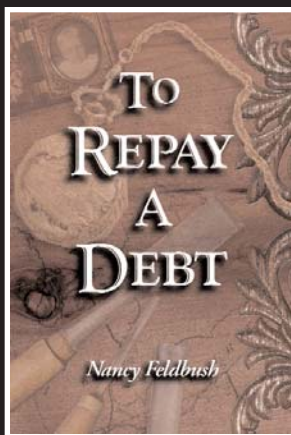

To Repay a Debt is the first in a series published by Moose Run Productions, a company that strives to publish books deemed decent, uplifting and steeped in Christian values. Moose Run Productions offers standard discounts to libraries, bookstores and wholesalers.
